Biography

Julio Larraz was born in 1942 in Havana, Cuba into a family of editors and journalists. His parents were in fact, publishers of an important local newspaper. He began painting at an early age - mainly caricatures.

In 1961 his family emigrated from Cuba to Miami. A year later they moved to Washington, D.C. and finally New York where Julio will reside for many years. In New York, the artist intensified his artistic knowledge while continuing to design political caricatures that were published regularly in the New York Times, The Washington Post, The Chicago Tribune and other important weekly papers in that period.

From 1967 on, Larraz, who in the meantime had undertaken various activities, was able to dedicate himself to painting full-time. Several leading exponents of American art at that time, contributed to his apprenticeship of pictorial techniques, particularly the great portrait artist Burt Silverman.

The Pyramid Gallery of Washington D.C. presented his paintings in a collective exhibition in the year 1971. The following year Larraz exhibited at the New York School for Social Research and in 1973 the FAR Gallery in New York inaugurated his first one-man exhibition.

In 1976 Larraz obtained recognition from the American Academy of Arts and Letters and also from the National Institute of Arts and Letters. In that same year, the Cintas Grant is bestowed on him by the Institute of International Education.

The following year, Larraz moved to San Patricio in New Mexico, fascinated by the light and the atmosphere. In 1978 he moved once again, this time to Grandview, near New York where he met the gallery dealer Nohra Haime. They will work together up until 1994. In 1983 Larraz left for Paris where he resided for two years. In 1986 he returns to Miami.

Between 1999 and 2003 the artist lived in Florence, Italy before returning to Miami where he currently resides with his family.

Biografia

Julio Larraz nasce nel 1942 all'Avana, Cuba, in seno ad una famiglia di giornalisti ed editori. I suoi genitori, Julio Fernandez ed Emma Larraz Sorondo, pubblicavano infatti un importante quotidiano locale. Inizia a dipingere molto presto, soprattutto caricature.

Nel 1961 la sua famiglia abbandona Cuba e si trasferisce a Miami. L'anno dopo si sposta a Washington D.C. e infine a New York, dove Julio risiede per parecchi anni. A New York, approfondisce le sue conoscenze artistiche e continua a disegnare caricature politiche che vengono puntualmente pubblicate dal New York Times, The Washington Post, The Chicago Tribune e le maggiori riviste settimanali di quegli anni.

Dal 1967 in avanti Larraz, che nel frattempo ha intrapreso svariate attività, si dedica alla pittura a tempo pieno. Alcuni esponenti dell'arte americana dell'epoca, in primo luogo il grande ritrattista Burt Silverman, contribuiscono al suo apprendistato delle tecniche pittoriche.

Nel 1971 la Pyramid Gallery di Washington, D.C. presenta suoi quadri in una mostra collettiva. L'anno dopo, Larraz espone alla New School for Social Research, a New York, e nel 1973 la FAR Gallery di New York organizza la sua prima personale.

Nel 1976 ottiene importanti riconoscimenti dall'American Academy of Arts and Letters e dal National Institute of Arts and Letters. Nello stesso anno l'Institute of International Education gli conferisce il Cintas Grant (borsa di studio).

L'anno successivo, Larraz si trasferisce a San Patricio, nel New Mexico, affascinato dalla luce e dall'atmosfera di quei posti.

Nel 1978, si stabilisce a Grandview, nei pressi di New York. Lì incontra la gallerista Nohra Haime, con la quale lavorerà fino al 1994. Nel 1983 si trasferisce a Parigi, dove rimane per due anni. Nel 1996, Larraz ritorna a Miami.

Tra il 1999 e il 2003 vive a Firenze, per poi rientrare a Miami, dove attualmente lavora e risiede assieme alla sua famiglia.
